Becker's Lodge

The coastline of Canada's most western province, is a maze of straits, sounds, and fjords, hundreds of islands and inlets. Scenery is unsurpassed, as the blue ocean meets the green forests covering the mountains, which reach for the sky. Because much of this coast is uninhabited and accessible only by boat or floatplane . . . it remains a pristine wilderness.

The West Coast of Vancouver Island is rugged and wild. Up and down the coast are many Sounds that reach deep inland forming, bays, coves, inlets and channels. Surf of the Pacific Ocean pounds against the shoreline cutting deep into the rock and rides over the sandy beaches, and old-growth temperate rain forests cover the land. The area is majestic and enchanting.

Situated off the northern most region of British Columbia are the Queen Charlotte Islands, and the Haida Gwaii. These islands offer an exceptionally beautiful and isolated location, made up of 150 islands this archipelago has a population of approximately 4,000 people and famous as the home of the Haida people and their culture. This very special place is shrouded in mist, storm ridden but filled with archaeological treasures, marine wildlife is abundant and wilderness abounds.

Boating off the Sunshine Coast and Vancouver takes you along the mainland of British Columbia from Howe Sound to Desolation Sound. The Sunshine Coast, has one of the highest totals of sunshine in Canada, as the name infers. Sandy beaches, mountains, inlets and waterfalls make sailing and exploring this region fun.

Points of interest in and around Vancouver include White Rock, Boundary Bay, Crescent Beach, Tsawwassen Beach, Steveston Harbour and Cannery Channel. All offer mooring and anchorage.
